WHAT A FANTASTIC START!

It all began on Friday October 12th 2007 with Judge-Executive Randy Thompson welcoming around 400 people to the grand opening ceremony for the Knott Co. Sportsplex. "I stand here with mixed emotions," Thompson related. "Obviously, I'm excited. But I'm also sad because two of our biggest supporters couldn't be here. We lost my father-in-law, Ray Slone, last week, and Kenny Champion, a founding member of the Youth Foundation and also a coach, passed away only last month." Judge Thompson went on to say "A group of us formed a youth foundation, primarily because we were frustrated that there was no place for kids. We decided to bring back Little League baseball, which had been missing from the county for 20 years. We now have 26 teams. Kenny Champion was a driving force; he just kept pushing us."

Judge Thompson had a list of people to thank for bringing the project to completion. He began with Rhett Gibson, director of the Sportsplex, "who worked into the wee hours to get the facility ready." The judge thanked the parks crew for their hard work, the new tourism commission whose members greeted the public before the ceremony, and Carolyn Gibson, Glenn Hale and the students in art class who created the sculptures in front of the center.

The judge thanked both fiscal courts, the one that was in place at the time of his appointment, and the current court. He also thanked Rep. Ancel Smith who was in attendance. Rep. Smith spoke about the youth foundation's early work at the Veterans Field ball park to discussions of buying the old Hindman gym, then property near the board of education office. "From there, we ended up here on the hill, which is so much better. I can't envision anything more impressive than the finished product."

Judge Thompson introduced State Senator Johnny Ray Turner who said, "I've coached basketball, baseball, golf and track. All over the state I've seen great facilities. But nothing in the state rivals this." Turner explained that after he retired from the school system and was elected senator, he heard people talking about the need for this type of facility. "It was in 2002 that I first talked to Randy Thompson and Jerald Combs about the dream of this place. Ancel and I found money in the coal severance budget and got the design work done. Bob Miller and Pocahontas Coal were willing to donate property -- but only for a first-class facility, so we secured funding for a road that suited such a facility. This tells you something about Bob, who runs a first-class operation."

Secretary Teresa Hill with the Cabinet of Environment & Public Protection spoke briefly, saying she was proud the Sportsplex was built on a former mine site. "As a former basketball player who received a scholarship that allowed me to continue my education, I think this facility is important...especially to have a facility that will improve the health of people in the area. I want to congratulate all of you on this special day."

Commerce Cabinet Secretary George Ward congratulated everyone who had worked toward the day. "I'm in the hotel business. I know what a facility like this could generate. All this activity will bring people and help grow your economy. Your kids will have the opportunity to hone their talents. How many people will earn college scholarships because they have this place to practice and play? This weekend, because of the basketball tournament here, 70 rooms were sold in Hazard. As the private sector realizes the impact, more development will come."

Derrick Ramsey, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and former U.K. football standout, shared his enthusiasm. "I grew up in a town like this, with around 800 people. A small town is where I feel most comfortable. When we drove up, all I could say was 'WOW.' This just proves that when people come together, no one can stop you."

Judge Thompson thanked the coal companies again, then made a surprise announcement. The first baseball field will be named Bob Miller Field, and the high school field will be designated the Western Pocahontas field, in honor of their tremendous support. The third field, a Little League field, will be the Kenny Champion Field. (Continued)

That evening there was an open house at the Sportsplex with hundreds of Knott Countians showing up to play basketball, bowl, exercise, try their skill at the arcade or grab a bite to eat at the concessions and converse with their neighbors. The following day, 43 teams from throughout Kentucky and from as far away as Ohio and Virginia came to play in a BCI basketball tournament organized by David Clevenger. The games were postponed briefly Saturday night so the spectators, teams and refs could watch University of Kentucky beat top-ranked Louisiana State in 3 overtimes on one of the 5 big screens located within the Sportsplex. As soon as UK won, the tournament resumed. The tournament ended Sunday afternoon.
