

APPENDIX E

Inventory of Trails

(in alphabetical order by trail name)

As noted in Chapter 4, there are 275 trails totaling 2,231.7 trail miles within the 13-county NCHA region.

- All thirteen counties offer day hikes and multi-use trails; six offer motorized trails for all-terrain vehicles and dirtbikes; and four of the counties have access to a water trail.
- Fifty-nine of these trails are overseen and/or managed by cities, counties, towns, private groups and/or private organizations for a total of 258.5 miles.
- Two hundred and nineteen trails totaling 1,835.9 miles are overseen, managed and, in most cases, maintained by state and federal agencies including the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources State Parks, West Virginia Division of Forestry, West Virginia Division of Natural Resources Wildlife Resources, National Park Service, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Hatfield-McCoy Regional Recreation Authority.

On the following pages is a list of all the trails in alphabetical order.

Fayette	Day hike	Many of the trails in the Fayetteville area were designed and built by volunteers. Some of the trails existed before the park acquired the property, but needed maintenance or trail re-routing. The park was assisted in some of the preliminary trail design and construction by a Trail Care Crew from the International Mountain Bike Association (IMBA). The trails in the Fayetteville area can be accessed from a number of different trailheads, and allow connections to trails in the Kaymoor area (and beyond). The most popular trailhead is probably located at the Fayetteville Town Park, where visitors also have access to the town playground, a .5 mile paved walking trail, and might be able to take in a baseball or softball game.	http://www.nps.gov/neri/planyourvisit/fayetteville_trails.htm	http://www.nps.gov/neri/planyourvisit/upload/Trail-newsletter-2009c.pdf
